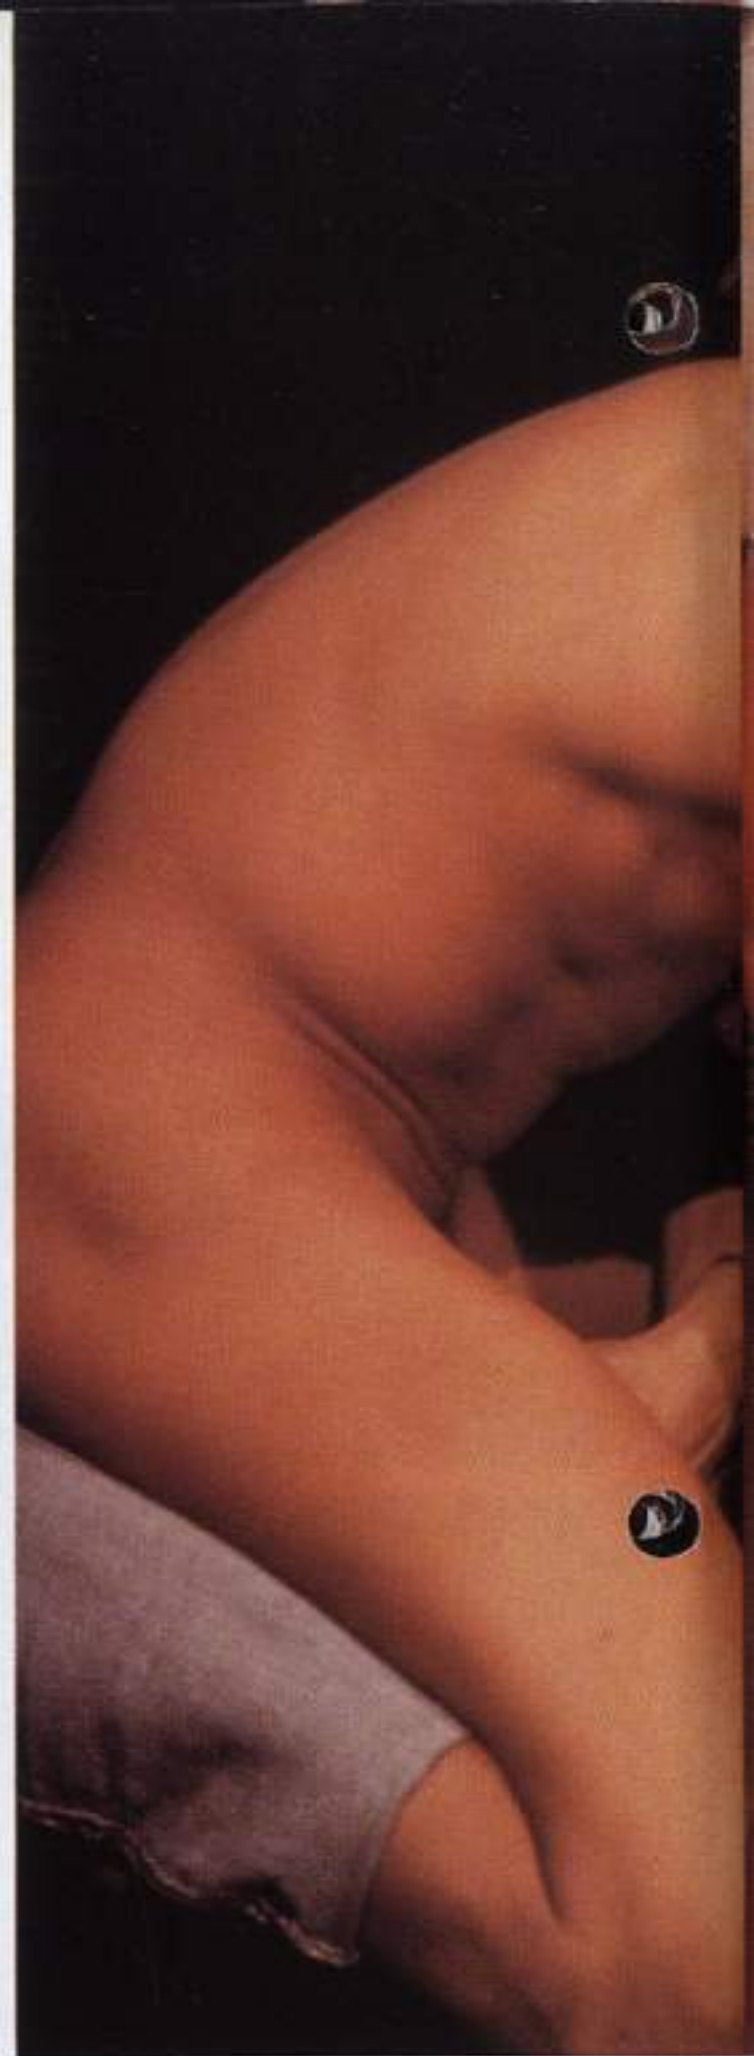
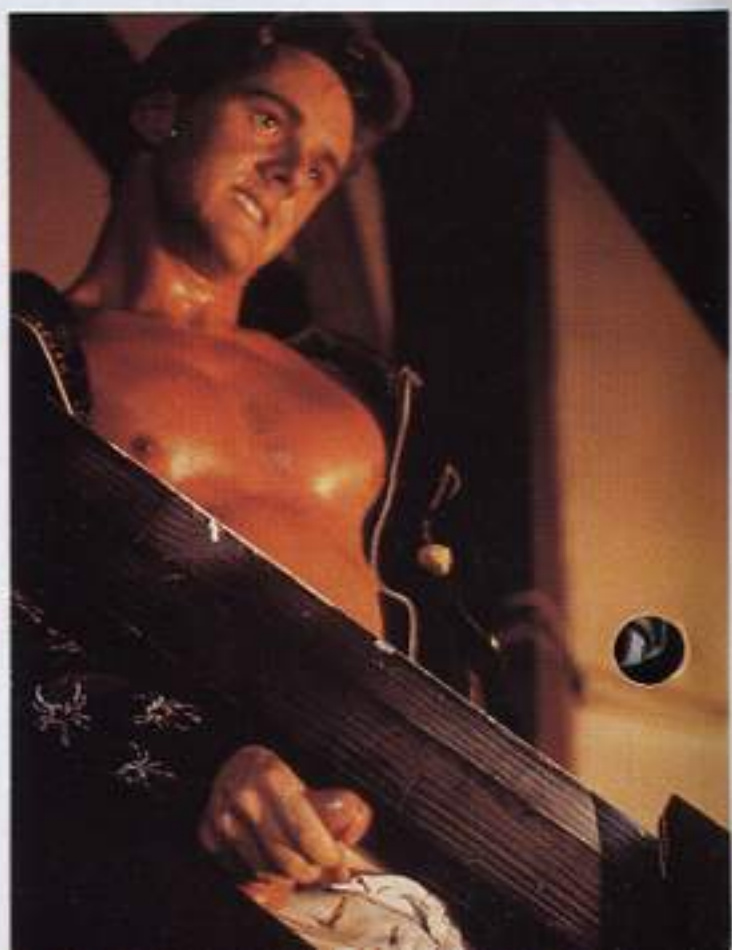
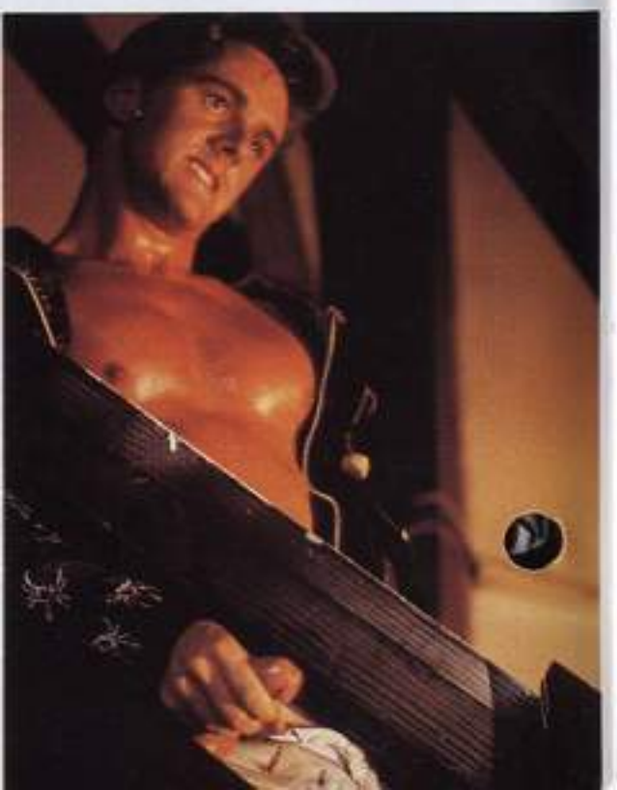
Scandal sheet editor Dallas Taylor sends ace reporter Greg Ross (opposite page, lower left) out to get the dirt on a local sex-club so they can shut it down. Ross is reluctant, but goes anyway. He sees lots of hot action. In the end, Ross joins in a steamy session with Jason Broderick only to find the third party is none other than Taylor. Outraged at his editor's hypocrisy, Ross quits his job, but decides to collect his severance in a scorching three-way. After some hot sandwich sex, Taylor decides to practice more responsible journalism. Well, duh -- why would Taylor go to the sex club on the very night that he sent Ross there to get the dirt on the place? This Mustang production is definitely one of those times that prolific director Chi Chi LaRue's 100 monkeys at 100 typewriters have come up with Hamlet.

Here we find Tony Styles (opposite page, top) trying to attract the attention of Tony Hampton by lying on his back and sucking a rather fat dildo as if to get to the Tootsie Roll center in vain. Hampton does reward him, however, with a roaring good bang.

Zak Spears (this page, left) and Dexter Crews have a hot sling session that includes (in a definite don't-try-this-at-home maneuver) "a good deal of stunt work with a five foot length of chain."







Donnie Russo (opposite page, above right) teases the caged Johnny Rey before finally letting the blond, day-old muffin explore his new daddy's muscular bod. Rey chomps down on Russo's perpetually stiff pecker like it's nobody's business.
